How can human service organizations intentionally and proactively engage and serve fathers?

To build a human service culture that's father-inclusive, it's vital to incentivize engaging and serving fathers by...

Increasing awareness of the positive impact of father involvement on the well-being of children, mothers, families, and communities.

Implementing policies that require or encourage organizations to engage and serve fathers.

Increasing funding for father-specific programs and other efforts.

Increasing programs and other tools and resources to engage and serve fathers.

Hiring male staff particularly in direct-service positions/roles.

Increasing capacity in organizations to engage and serve fathers.

Human service organizations, and the entities that fund them, have a huge role to play in this solution. That's why NFI builds capacity in human services to more intentionally and proactively engage fathers.
